2024 Year of Prayer

Second Sunday of Easter (B)

Second Week of Easter Vol. II psalter week 2

TODAY'S MASS

Second Sunday of Easter or of Divine Mercy

Note that all Sundays in this season are 'of' not 'in' Easter. This means that they should be treated with the same solemnity as Easter Sunday itself. Today bears a second title of 'Divine Mercy', given it by Pope St John Paul II.

First Reading (Acts 4:32-35): The progress of the Good News reflects the reality of the Kingdom of Heaven: everyone was united, heart and soul, and no one was in need.

Psalm (Ps 117:2-4.15-18.22-24): The psalmist, in the second verse, was in trouble and punished, but even so this is a psalm of rejoicing at a loving God's saving acts.

Second reading (1 John 5:1-6): Our love of God is shown by keeping his commandments, and these 'are not difficult'. 'Water and blood' refers back to John's account of the Crucifixion, and refer to the Eucharist (blood) and Baptism (water).

Gospel (John 20:19-31): We hear the Gospel which corresponds to the week after Easter Sunday ('eight days' in Jewish counting = a week in our counting), namely the appearance of the risen Jesus to Thomas. There is an important message that Jesus gives in response to Thomas's acceptance of what he now sees and believes, and it is a message for us: blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe. Fr David

DIVINE MERCY SUNDAY

This is based on the devotion started by St Faustina Kowalska, who had various visions of and conversations with Jesus Christ. You can find the devotions online. A Plenary Indulgence can be obtained this day by participating in the Divine Mercy devotions and with the usual conditions (Sacramental Confession, Holy Communion, and Prayer for the Pope's Intentions).

MANNA COLLECTION

The Manna Centre is a centre for homeless people, started by a Catholic religious sister, near London Bridge. Please place dry or canned goods (eg pasta, sugar, tinned items, biscuits, etc) in the collection boxes in the Church porch. Please make sure the items are in date. If you haven't brought the items with you, you can always return later and place them in the boxes, as the Church is open all day. Thank you for your support.
